Maplewood Nature Center Public Meeting No. 2

Project Introduction:

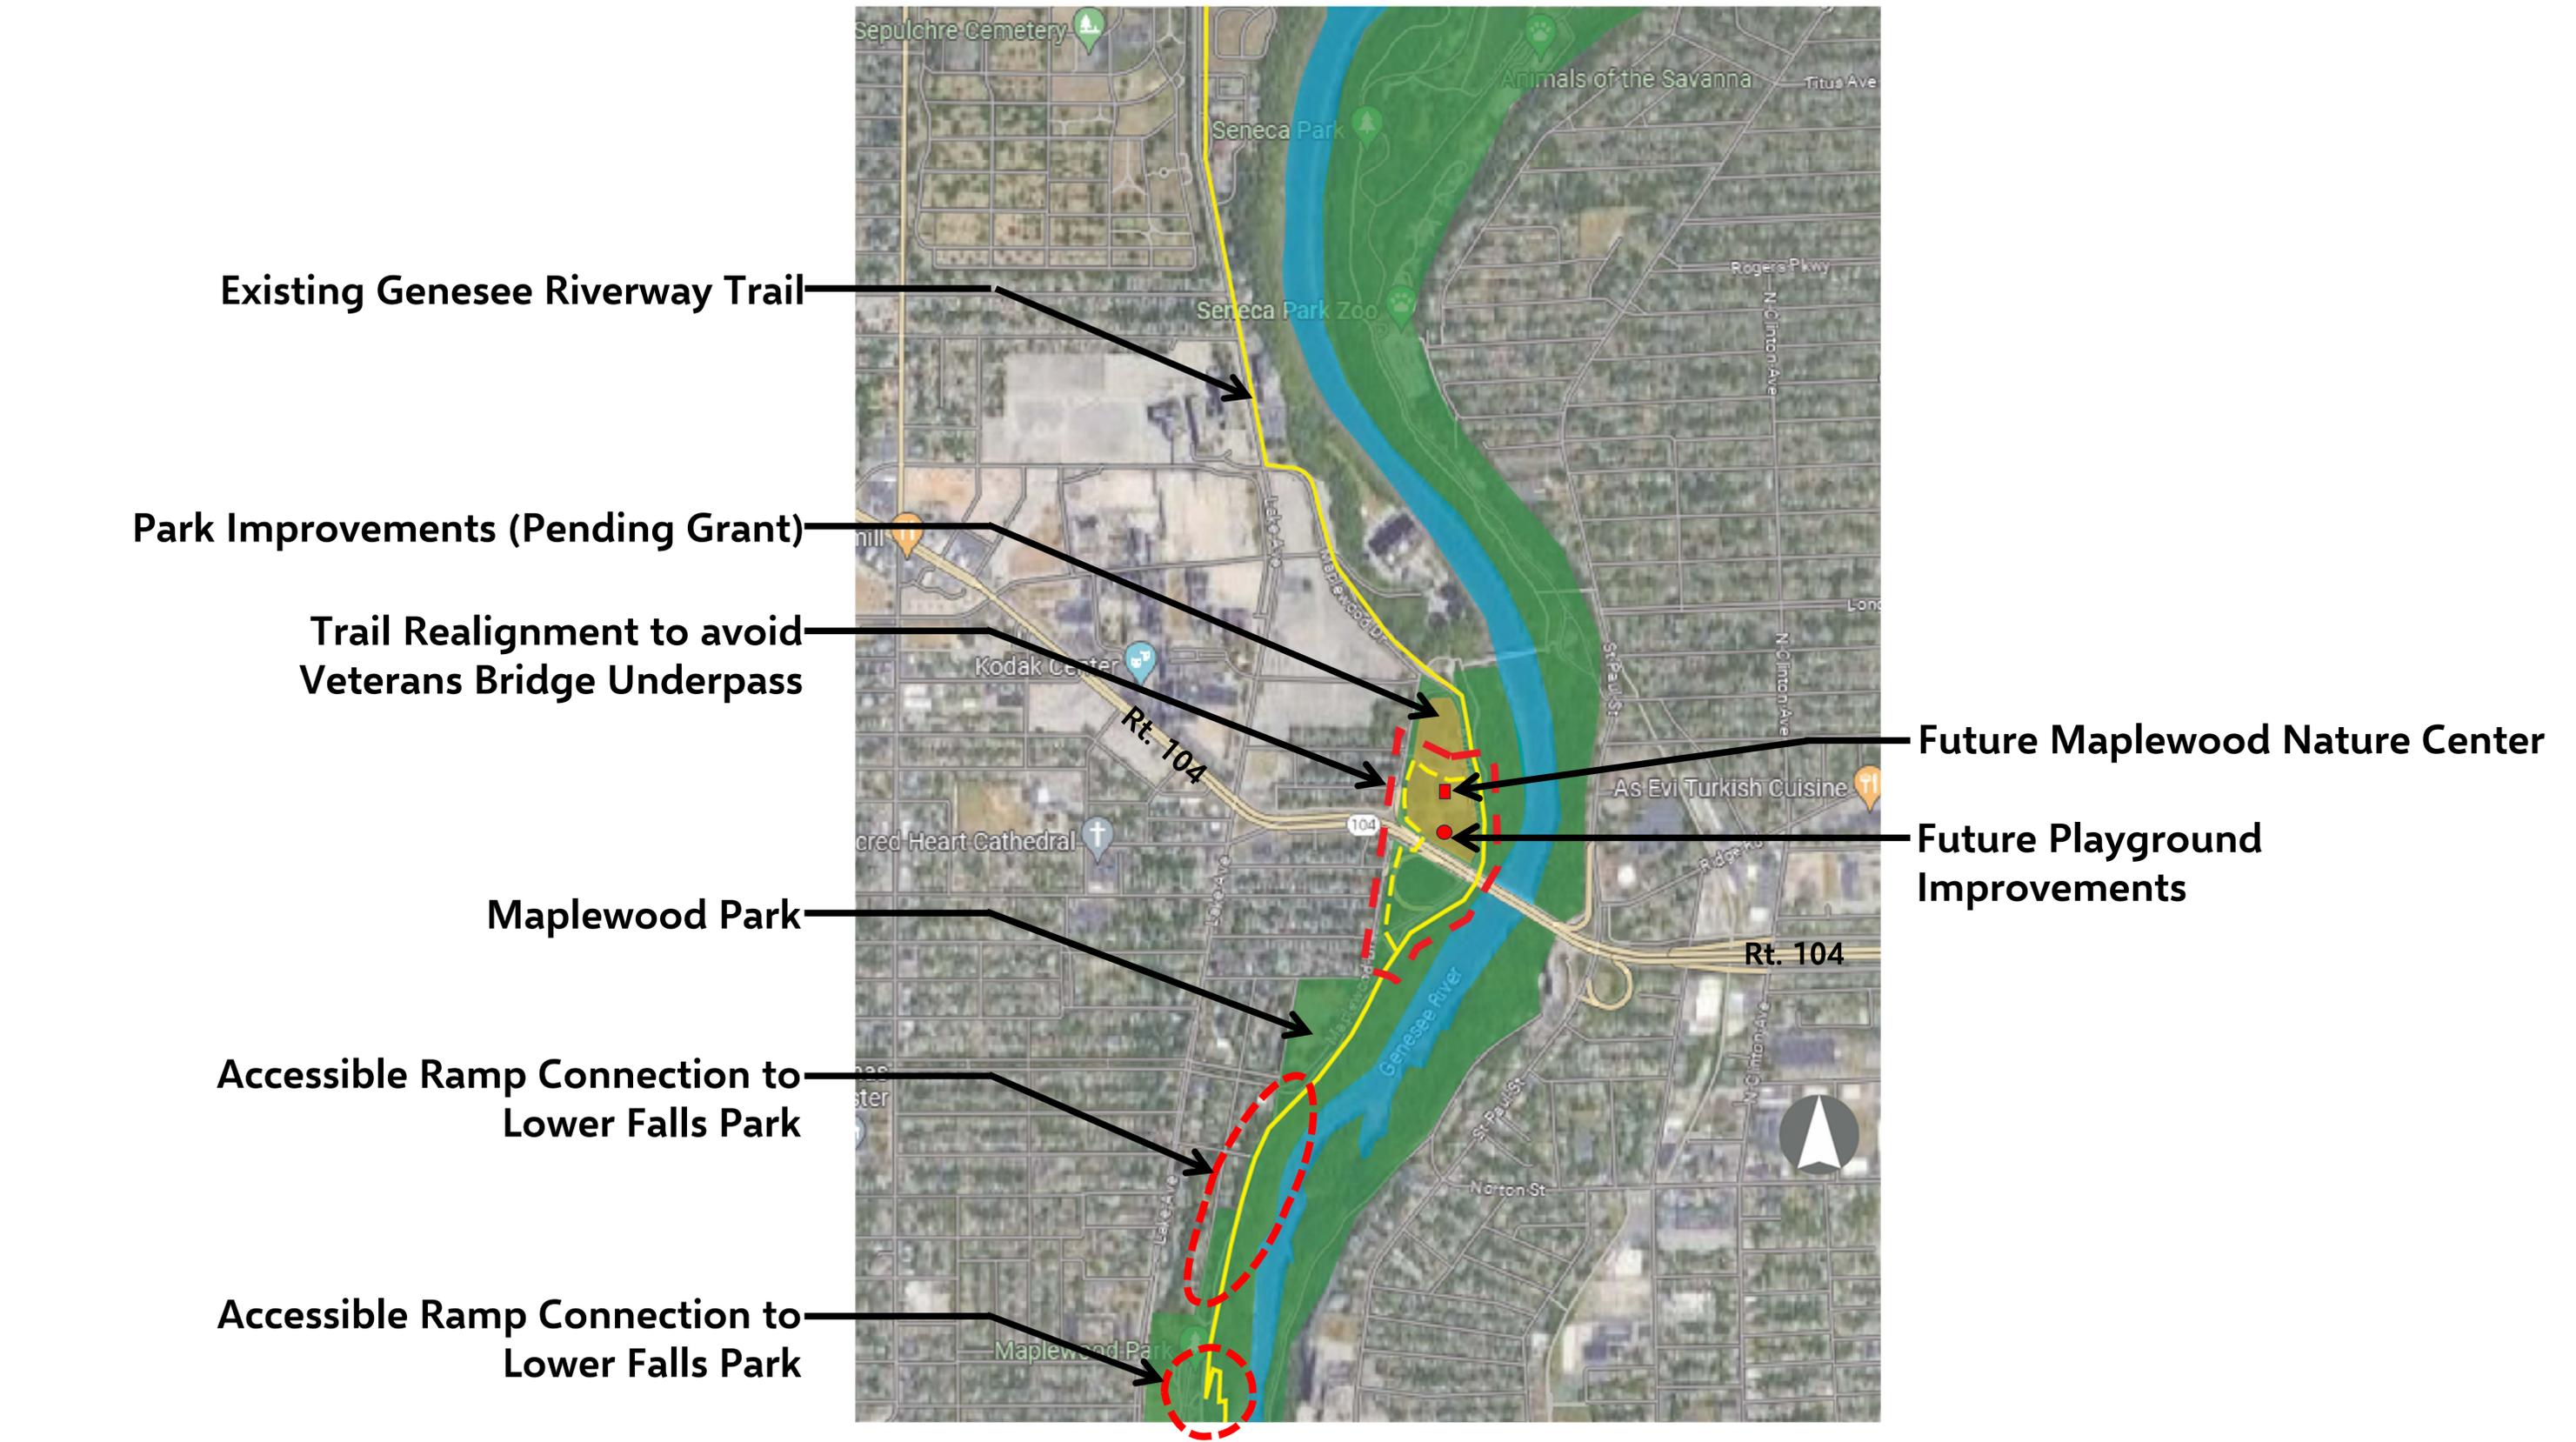

The City of Rochester is committed to the development of an urban nature center at Maplewood Park to increase community-wide access to nature. In order to fulfill this commitment, the City of Rochester has dedicated an existing facility in the historic Frederick Law Olmsted designed Maplewood Park as the site of the future nature center.

The Maplewood Nature Center will include indoor exhibit and learning space, a demonstration kitchen, teaching gardens, a renovated playground and much more. The center will connect our community with key stakeholders and providers of environmental and nature-based programming from across the region.
